ANALYSIS

Constructed in 1951 and designed by architect Albert Anis, the existing structure located at 1651 Washington Avenue is classified as a Non-Contributing building due to the degree of alterations that have been made since its original date of construction. The majority of alterations occurred between 1953 and 1972, and included storefront modifications, the blocking in of windows, the introduction of stone cladding and the construction of a tower element. In 2014, the Board reviewed and approved a Certificate of Appropriateness for the partial demolition and renovation of the existing building including substantial modifications to primary facades which included a reinterpretation of several architectural elements of the original 1951 Albert Anis design.

The second floor tenant is currently requesting approval for the installation of a sign above the ground level. Signage located at the upper façade of a building would typically be approved administratively in accordance with the building identification sign regulations provided for in Chapter 138 of the City Code. However, as this building already has an approved “Bhojwani Tower” building identification signage, the applicant is requesting the Board approve the location of the “Gymage” tenant signage in a location that is above the ground level.

As indicated in the background section of this report, the Code was modified in 2019 and provides the Historic Preservation Board with the review authority for signage in a location above the ground floor. Prior to this code amendment the proposed signage was not allowed above the ground floor. Staff has no objection to the location of the proposed sign and would note that it has been designed in a manner which is proportionate to the existing parapet wall area and will not have any adverse impact on the surrounding historic district. Finally, staff would note that historically the building had much larger parapet signage as seen in the image of the original Lincoln Road façade on the following page.

RECOMMENDATION

In view of the foregoing analysis, staff recommends the application be approved subject to the conditions enumerated in the attached draft Order.
