Rocky Mount, NC Assistant City Manager out ?

PER SOURCES

Assistant Rocky Mount City Manager Natasha Hampton-Clayton has resigned due to working in a toxic work environment, according to sources. Those same sources state that she is still on the payroll but the city is going to give her a settlement or an exiting package.

Last year she was a finalist for a City Manager position at a city in Florida and did not get the seat. - That was reported last November by the Telegram.

There have been rumors in the past of her departure, the sources who work inside City Hall have stated that they are certain that she is out. - time will tell.

Hampton-Clayton has put in resumes across the country including to be city manager in California as shown in the document below found online.

This is a developing story. Working on more details and a confirmation.
