ANALYSIS

At its February 6, 2024 meeting, the Miami Beach Commission for Women passed a unanimous motion recommending for the City to co-designate a City street in honor of women who have significantly impacted the City's history and culture. There are currently twenty-two streets co-named after historical figures in the City and only two of the streets are named after women. LTC 041-2024, dated February 6, 2024, provided a list of seven noteworthy candidates to be considered for ceremonial street co-designations.

I would like for the Committee to consider the Commission's list of recommendations, as specified in LTC 041-2024, and specifically, any candidates that have not been already separately referred to the Committee for consideration of a street co-designation.

Motion Made by Janis Good
Seconded by Pam Mayer

The Miami Beach Commission for Women made a motion to co-designate Miami Beach city streets in honor of women who have made a significant and valuable impact in Miami Beach history and culture.

There are 22 streets named after historical figures in the City of Mimi Beach and only two of them are named after women. The Commission for Women would like to submit the following seven names of historical female figures to be considered for ceremonial street re-namings. All of these women are deserving of this honor.

We recommend the following outstanding noteworthy women:

Josephine Baker
Judy Drucker
Naomi Wilzig
Elizabeth Goodnow Cooper
Sophie Tucker
Gwen Margolis
DeAnne Connolly Graham

Motion Passage: Unanimously.

The Miami Beach Commission for Women urges the Mayor and Commission to support the above request.

Ceremonial Street Name Candidates

Josephine Baker

Cabaret singer and dancer and civil rights activist. On January 10, 1951, Josephine Baker became the first known entertainer to perform at a prominent Miami Beach club before an integrated audience. Baker was considered to be a bridge between France and the United States in the struggle against discrimination.

Judy Drucker

Known as an impresario of concerts, opera, dance, all things art, founded CAF (Concert Association of Florida) in 1967 at Temple Beth Sholom in Miami Beach. In less than a year the Gleason Theater became home. During the next 40 years Drucker developed the organization into the largest classical presenter in the southeastern U.S. to include stars such as: Pinchas Zukerman, Itzhak Perlman, Andr_ Watts, Luciano Pavarotti, Beverly Sills, Dmitri Hvorostovsky, Cecilia Bartoli, and Mikhail Baryshnikov.

Naomi Wilzig

An American art collector, who searched for a place to call home for her collection for 6 years overcoming obstacles from cities to landlords. Finally found home on 12th and Washington becoming the founder and director of The World Erotic Art Museum in Miami Beach, Florida. On the 5th anniversary, Wilzig wrote 3 books about her collection, received an honorary doctorate from The Institute for the Advanced Study of Human Sexuality in the study of erotic art and an honorary doctorate from the U.S. Rabbinical Council for her philanthropy and finances.

Elizabeth Goodnow Cooper

Also known as Mrs. Clayton Sedgwick Cooper distinguished novelist, founded the Miami Beach Women's Club at 24th and Pinetree to foster friendships withing the community. The Club organized the "book shower" at the Pancoast Hotel receiving 899 volumes in donations and resulting in the creation of present-day Miami Beach Library. The Clubs efforts impressed Carl G. Fisher enough to contribute by donating a site to the Club in March of 1927.

Sophie Tucker

Known by the nickname "the Last of the Red-Hot Mamas," Tucker started singing in her family's restaurant at a young age. Eventually becoming one of the most popular multifaceted entertainers in the US during the 20th Century, a singer, comedian, actress and radio personality.

She spent time in Miami Beach with her son, a hotel manager. She also performed at the Colonial Inn, the Beachcomber, Jack Dempsey's Bar and the Latin Quarter, paving the way for other women entertainers.

Gwen Margolis

Margolis described as a trailblazer, championing women's rights, children's health issues, open and ethical government. During her 6 years as chair of Miami-Dade County Department of Cultural Affairs she took elevated the department tripling its budget. She led restoration efforts to fund the grants programs under the Division of Cultural Affairs leading to the cultural hot spot Miami Beach is today.

DeAnne Connolly Graham

DeAnne effortlessly wore many hats ranging from a public speaker, actor, model not to mention a successful entrepreneur. Connolly Graham actively to promote social justice and equal minority participation in business, participating in numerous initiatives to help underdeveloped communities; Miami Beach's Black Affairs Advisory Committee, AYUDA, and Miami Beach's Chamber of Commerce Women's Business Council, just to name a few.
